What You Will Learn?

America, 1920–1973: Opportunity and inequality:

This period study focuses on the development of the USA during a turbulent half century of change. It was a period of opportunity and inequality – when some Americans lived the 'American Dream' whilst others grappled with the nightmare of poverty, discrimination and prejudice.

Britain: Health and the people: c1000 to the present day:

This thematic study will enable students to gain an understanding of how medicine and public health developed in Britain over a long period of time. It considers the causes, scale, nature and consequences of short and long term developments, their impact on British society and how they were related to the key features and characteristics of the periods during which they took place.

Norman England: c1066–c1100:

This option allows students to study in depth the arrival of the Normans and the establishment of their rule. The depth study will focus on major aspects of Norman rule, considered from economic, religious, political, social and cultural standpoints of this period and arising contemporary and historical controversies.

How Will I Be Assessed?

Lessons will be a mixture of discussion, written work and group work. You will develop your knowledge and understanding and explanations as well as source evaluation skills. You will be able to relate many of the current events in the world to what we have studied. Assessment is by examination only.

What can I do after I have completed the course?

History is accepted for entry to Sixth Form and at A Level to higher education. It is highly regarded for its academic rigour and challenge. It provides you with the skills for discussion and evaluation of your own thinking. Students have gone on to study Law, Engineering, Teaching and Medicine as well as more traditional courses such as history, education and management.
